The front page of the New York Times recently presented quite a contrast between world leaders. According to his very first press conference, Yitzhak Rabin, Israel’s newly-elected Prime Minister, plans to change his country’s policy direction, cutting back on West Bank construction to please the Palestinians and, ultimately, the United States government. Bush plans to stick to his course, counting on his record and his “ability to lead” to win the upcoming election. Personally I think both men are dead wrong.

I believe Rabin wants to do the very best for his country, and is operating under the theory of “a new broom sweeps clean.” But the principle that Israel is entitled to its land by divine right is too important to push aside in order to merely foster pleasant relations with another government. It is George Bush, and almost he alone, who cruelly held back the ten billion dollar loan guarantee and severely reduced the emigration of Jewish refugees from Russia to Israel. His mindless policy of pleasing Arab dictators by thwarting Israel’s efforts to continue building its democracy have actually intimidated some of the Israelis, perhaps including Rabin and his Labor Party. To make a policy to please George Bush now seems counterproductive. I feel very sure that President Bush will soon be history, and not very positive history at that. Ceasing the all-important building of the Promised Land won’t be necessary. To the Arabs, Israel would be just one more country, making twenty-three. To the Jews, Israel determines their survival in this world.

There was a refreshing picture of former President Jimmy Carter, humbly at work with his Baptist church crew, building houses for the poor, as he does annually. Frankly, he looks so much better after the Reagan-Bush years that he takes on an almost Lincoln-like stature in comparison. As President, he made it clear that he was a believer, and he told the truth. At the moment, we seem to be having another “dirty tricks” election among tinhorn politicians (other than Ross Perot). It seems we are now to choose which rap singer critic will lead the world. And in my own view, anyone with a chance to be our future President should be forced to spell “potato,” at a minimum.

The same New York Times front page reports the Supreme Court’s affirmation of the ban on prayers in public schools, guaranteeing that this country will continue to bumble along on man’s wisdom alone. An article about Ross Perot successfully deflecting the verbal garbage thrown at him by the

Bush Administration completes the bottom of the page. It's quite a day for news.

Ross Perot has defended himself very well against his critics. The silly Rich Bond, Republican Party Chairman, said, “If Ross Perot can't handle criticism, how's he going to handle Saddam Hussein?” Well, I for one hope he doesn't take any lessons from George Bush on that. What an absurd point to even bring up — his boss's own most grievous error. That Saddam Hussein lives, breathes and continues to torment his people and threaten the rest of the world is a product of the failure of one man: George Bush. The sheer amount of suffering one oblivious leader can wreak in this world is stunning. No wonder the whole world is crying out for new leadership, and it will surely get it in the Antichrist. When Bond called in on CNN's Larry King Show, Ross shredded him over the Bush campaign's “dirty tricks” group, who, having no content to brag on in the White House, simply flails away at their main opponent. Perot produced a letter on the show showing what the President thinks of him; “The Perot spirit of unselfishness...” was a phrase Bush used in the letter. In return, Perot, to his credit, described the President as “a fine man who has a fine family.” To me, the key moment in the talk show was when he was asked, “Are you a friend of Israel?”, and the unannounced candidate replied with a simple, “Yes.” And as for Israel's friendship with the United States, Perot said, “They proved that a thousand times.”

Where dirty tricks are concerned, it's really funny to watch the Fitzwater versus Perot credibility contest. Marlin Fitzwater, the President's chief spokesman, has probably never, in his entire life, expressed his own thoughts. He is more or less the Administration's “designated liar.” I suspect these people are going to reap a whirlwind if they keep coming at Ross Perot.

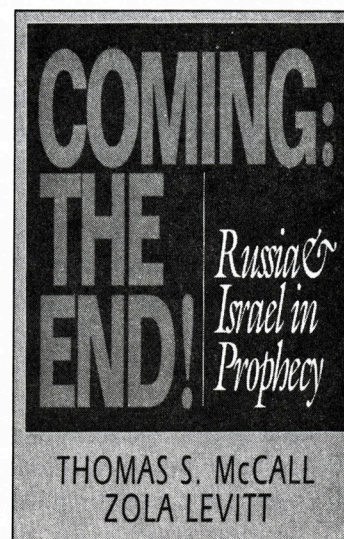

As for Bush, there seem to be very few people who are impressed with either his record or his alleged ability to lead. Sworn to “jobs, jobs, jobs,” it appears he can't find a way to keep his own job, thank heaven. He says he “empathizes with the tax protesters” in California, but having read his lips, I somehow doubt his sincerity. Any other candidate, almost any American off the streets, would be kinder to Israel. In my lifetime, only Nixon was more disappointing. One man's opinion.

If we still believe Genesis 12:3 (“And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee:”), then we need a President supportive of

COMING: THE END! RUSSIA & ISRAEL IN PROPHECY

Zola's newest book, this is Moody Press's updated version of The Coming Russian Invasion of Israel. This study of the first upcoming end times prophecies is vital reading for all who believe the Scriptures. There is even a chapter on A Strategy for Unbelievers to tell those who do not believe how to cope with the Tribulation Period! Steadily updated, this basic book of prophecy analyzes the world situation in most enlightening and sometimes surprising terms. Called by Hal Lindsey, “a must for everyone who wants to know where we are on God's timetable.”

A Look at the Book

by Steve Ger

This month I conclude our three-part study of God's New Covenant as revealed in the prophetic pages of Jeremiah 30-33. I am writing this in my hotel room in Jerusalem where I am co-leading Zola's summer tour of the Holy Land. With my Bible in one hand and a pen in the other, I look out my window and view this rugged, golden city, and I feel an overwhelming sorrow. Earlier today, I stood atop the Mt. of Olives, facing the Eastern Gate of the Temple Mount, and read aloud the Scripture where Jesus, standing in the same place, cried over Jerusalem, "O Jerusalem — if only you had known the time of your visitation!" This is my third trip to Israel, and it is still heart wrenching to know that the inhabitants of this city, so beloved by the Messiah, have yet to recognize the time of their visitation. There is a zeal for God in this city, but as Paul wrote almost two millennia ago, it is a zeal without knowledge — the true knowledge of Messiah (Rom. 10:2). However, as we will learn from Jeremiah this month, the Jewish people will not be ignorant of their Messiah forever. In fact, the thousands of Jewish believers living in Israel today attest to that fact.

Let's briefly review what we have studied together in Jeremiah, and then move on to his exciting conclusion.

In May and June we studied the first two of the five elements of the New Covenant as expressed in Jeremiah 30-33. These are the realization of the Covenantal ideal between God and His people and the preservation of His people, Israel, as a nation, in addition to His establishing them in a new Messianic kingdom. The three remaining elements are that God's law will be written on everyone's hearts, and therefore, all people will know God and have a personal relationship with Him, and finally, that when Israel repents, God will forgive and forget its sin.

There is a dark period in the history of God's Chosen People which must precede their bright future when God fulfills His promises to them. Prior to the ultimate restoration and fulfillment of God's New Covenantal promises to Israel there will be a period of great suffering. Jeremiah described this as the "time of Jacob's distress," and portrayed it as a period of dread, terror and destruction such as has never been experienced before (30:4-7). We commonly refer to this period as "The Great Tribulation." One can only shudder at the intensity of this coming period of tribulation for Israel (which clearly will be much worse than the Nazi Holocaust), particularly in light of other Scriptural references (i.e. Zech. 13, Joel, Mt. 24, etc.). It is implied that this suffering will be God's means of again chastening the nation; yet once again God promises His presence and His mercy even to salvation (30:11). In fact, we know from Zechariah and from Paul in Romans 9-11 that after the Day of Jacob's Trouble the remaining Jewish people will call on their Messiah and "all Israel will be saved."

This leads to the third element of the New Covenant, which is that rather than on tablets of stone, as presented through Moses, God's law will be written on each individual's heart. The New Covenant will radically differ from the Mosaic Covenant in that righteousness will no longer be obtained through the regulation and observance of the law. Personal regeneration (new birth) will occur, and the law will be internalized as God Himself changes people's hearts (31:33; 32:39-40). The current crop of Jewish believers, more of whom are springing up daily, are a foretaste and a portent of things to come, an indication of the future national salvation of the Jewish nation following the Tribulation.

Praise God for His faithfulness!

This internalization of God's law will result in the next element, the universal knowledge of the Lord. As the law will be internalized through God's active restoration of each individual to a right relationship with Himself, all will know Him, from the greatest in the nation to the least. This will result in further blessings on Israel, material and spiritual (31:34; 32:39-40).

The final element of the New Covenant is that Israel will, individually and collectively, repent as a nation and the Lord will forgive and forget its sins. Its iniquity will be forgiven and cleansed and its sins will no longer be remembered (31:34; 33:8). Of course, this is a result of the nation collectively, at one moment, recognizing its Messiah, Yeshua, Who will establish His millennial kingdom of righteousness.

Collectively, the five elements of the New Covenant reveal the faithfulness, love and sovereignty of the Lord to His people and His promises. While we in the church age may be partial partakers of the spiritual elements of the New Covenant, its true and complete fulfillment is yet to come, and pertains particularly to the physical nation of Israel.

HERE'S THE BEEF!

In our May Bulletin Board announcement, Where's Your Beef, we sought a consensus from our readers on, "I'd contribute more to Zola Levitt Ministries if . . . ." Some of your answers were: "if I had more available to contribute," "if I were employed," "if we weren't already struggling."

We ask that you support us only if you are able. And if you are able, please help a little extra for those who can't. We are to "bear one another's burdens." Thanks.

LEVITT LETTER EXTRA

You could have read this month's cover article three weeks ago if you had subscribed to the Levitt Letter Extra. Actually, you would have received a much longer, more detailed article since the space limitations of this publication required a heavy editing hand. Zola writes a Levitt Letter Extra whenever world events warrant timely commentary. It is printed on a rush basis and mailed first class. If you would like to join those who are the first to receive Zola's insights on fast-breaking news, simply write "LLX" on the order form (pg. 7) and return it with your payment of $25.00 per quarter.

A NOTE FROM ZOLA

Dear Friends,

Our summer tour of Israel was, as always, delightful, with wonderful weather, gracious, friendly people and delicious food. It is a constant joy to me to introduce the land of my heritage to new pilgrims. I wish everyone of you reading this now could join me in the Promised Land — in this lifetime. No one can help but be enchanted by this remarkable country and its resilient people. Passengers on our tours invariably remark on the contrast between the areas where the Israeli citizens live and those called Palestinians live. The industriousness and the love of the true owners for the land is glaringly evident.

I am happy to report that we are still receiving responses to our nationally broadcast special on the Dead Sea Scrolls. Your support allowed us to reach thousands of people who have never viewed “religious” programming. There is no way to tell you the number of people who were led to our Lord because of this program, but let me assure you that based on the phone calls and letters we have received, it was many times more than we are able to reach with our weekly program alone. Please accept our sincere apology if you were left holding or failed to receive the standard of service you so rightly expect from us. The offers of a videotape of the special for $19, a videotape of the entire seven-program series for $69 and a transcript of the special for $9 are still valid.

We are currently working on a new series specifically addressing Israel’s claim to its land titled, Israel: By Divine Right! We have taped a great deal of footage, but need funding to cover more location video and, particularly, post-production expenses. Please prayerfully consider helping us complete this project. It’s really you, and not us, who will make this programming happen. Thank you sincerely for all of your good help in the past.

This week Dr. Thomas McCall and I will be appearing on the radio talk show hosted by Probe Ministries. We are looking forward to the opportunity to expose and refute the misguided theology and obvious anti-Semitism expressed earlier on this program. We will present the true case for Israel belonging to the Jewish people and the real meaning of God’s promise to Abraham and his seed (Gen. 17:8). You may rest assured that whenever we hear of defamation of Israel or the Chosen People we will be there as soon as possible with the Biblical truth.

And by all means, consider joining me for a very special fall tour when you will experience all three fall feasts in one trip! We will depart on the second day of the Feast of Trumpets (if the Rapture does not occur on the first day) and will be in Jerusalem on the Day of Atonement, the holiest day of the Jewish year. We are offering two optional extensions: (1) if you chose the Eilat excursion, you will be in Jerusalem for the Feast of Tabernacles, or, (2) you may wish to continue on to Greece for a luxury cruise of the Greek islands of Patmos, Mykonos and Rhodes and tours of Ephesus, Corinth, Athens and Mars Hill. Write or call Karen or Linda immediately (214-690-1876) for all the details.

Again, thank you for your support and please continue to keep us in your prayers.

Your messenger,

Israel or we'll never get out of this disaster. In other presidential news, “President” Assad of Syria is unhappy about the Israeli election. Once his aides explained to him what an election is, he was disappointed that the more dovish candidate was chosen, and, as a result, Israel is more likely to pursue a course toward peace with the Palestinians. Assad himself has always wanted three things: kill the Jews, kill the Jews and kill the Jews. His pal in Washington, George Bush, has done all he could to facilitate this goal, but the Jews will survive Bush and Assad, as they have survived the British, the Turks, the early Moslems, the Crusaders, the Romans, the Greeks, the Persians, the Babylonians, the Assyrians, the Philistines, the hundred marauding tribes of the ancient Sinai and the Egyptian slave drivers. God is not mocked.

There are those who think Israel should go to the Palestinians. Without a Jewish Israel would the Bible, the Old Testament and the New Testament, make any real sense? Or would they be only the relic books of an extinct people? The Jewish people are ironically the only true natives in their own land in the Middle East.

For their part, the PLO and Jordan are glad about the election results. They believe Rabin will be a soft touch, but this much-decorated General, who as Chief of Staff routed the Arab armies in the '67 war, may not be the pushover they think he is. I wonder why the elections in Israel don't make the average suffering Arab on the streets of Jordan, Syria, Iraq, Egypt, Libya, etc., etc., stop and wonder why he must live under a lifelong dictator. The Arab populace, with the exception of the Palestinians, is basically illiterate, badly fed and lacks even the bare basics of modern life — clean water, up-to-date medical care and effective schooling. The Palestinians now living in Israel have been fortunate enough to exist side-by-side with 20th century people, and therefore are far ahead of their brothers in the essential comforts of modern life. Ironically, they want to revolt and turn things upside down again.

Point of information: Arabs who live in Israel typically divide their vote, half of them choosing Jewish parliament members to represent them.

How can anyone take the Middle East peace conference seriously when the Palestinian delegation, pledged not to take instruction from the PLO, actually appeared on television in a smiling, hugging conference with Arafat? How they can make this murderer into some sort of statesman is beyond me, but in any case, they simply disqualify themselves as serious peace negotiators when they carry on like that. I am reminded of spiteful children — forgive me — when I see rule-breaking hostility played out so mawkishly in public. Long ago, this newsletter predicted that nothing at all would come of this peace conference, and with the end of Bush, we can get rid of the whole phony thing once and for all.

My sentiments about not trying to make peace with the Arabs are based on a long history of hopelessly broken promises. There must have been a hundred Lebanese cease-fires, most lasting no more than 24 hours, and that was a war with Arabs on all sides. The destruction of Israel is the goal of all Arab dictators, and those who help them, from the local anti-Semite to the White House, are liable to the God of Israel who promised the land to His Chosen People.

America's anti-Israel pose is a feature of Bush's “New World Order” that Americans in general never wanted, anyway. We also didn't want a pro-Red China posture, our President begging the Japanese for small favors, embarrassing us internationally at Rio, damaging Panama over a personal rift with a former colleague and the recent defamation of Ross Perot. But “the greatest of these” is the anti-Israel stance. It has made us a weak and suffering nation, suddenly finding ourselves in poverty, terrific violence and moral decay. If we would take an example from Israel — which is Israel's purpose in this world (I Cor. 10:11) — we would realize we own this country, and we can change the leadership as we like. We, too, can exercise a “protest vote,” just like the Israelis.

We should not miss the prophetic significance of Chinese missiles and technology being sent to cockamamie Middle East dictators. The arming of Syria, Iran and other such terroristic states squares perfectly with the alliance between the King of the North (the nearby Arab powers) and the King of the East with his two hundred million-man army (undoubtedly China). As with the forming of the Western European confederacy, the alignment of allies helps predict the timing of the prophecy. Bush's continued support of Red China for “most favored nation” status makes it much easier for them to bring on the attempted destruction of Israel, seemingly a Bush objective.
